

Annual giving touches every area of life at Project PATCH. Without this vital resource, we would not be able to continue changing lives. Over fifty percent of our operating budget comes in individual donations. Thank you from the bottom of our hearts to those that gave. This year due to the need for cutting costs, and still provide an Annual Report, only Honor/Memorial gifts will be listed. We realize that many of our supporters' gifts are made at great sacrifice. This Annual Report gratefully acknowledges your generosity. Your gifts and prayers continue to sustain and encourage us.

PATCH

2006 annual report

from the chairman

I am writing these comments with memories fresh in my mind of a recent television program I watched. The story involved a father and his two sons, and the grief they experienced when a reckless driver hit and killed the mother and daughter. It told how they dealt with this senseless tragedy with an overwhelming sense of sadness and pain, and then anger. But as they worked through their feelings, all three of them came to the same conclusion — if they were to continue on with their lives, without anger and vindictiveness, they had to forgive.

This was a true story, which made it more poignant. The real father in this touching drama was interviewed at the conclusion, and confessed that it was only his faith that made the forgiveness both possible and necessary. What a powerful message!

That's what PATCH is all about. Healing broken and wounded hearts. Kids come to the Ranch with all sorts of hurt and pain; broken homes, physical, mental, and sexual abuse, often by someone they trusted. Some are angry and depressed. Others are in trouble because of things they've done. Many need medications and counseling to get through the day. But they all need to feel loved and accepted so that they, like the father and sons in the movie, learn to forgive and move on.

That's what is so wonderful about our faith. God loves and accepts us unconditionally, and then enables us to love and accept others and participate in the healing process. Our staff at the Ranch are great at expressing that love. I witnessed it again this month at our annual fishing trip with the boys. To hear them share in their devotional time in the cabin, one would never imagine the pain some have experienced. That's the power of love and healing.

On behalf of the Board of Trustees, the staff, and the kids, thanks for supporting the work of PATCH.

– HARLAN GEPHART, M.D., CHAIRMAN

We make every effort to provide complete and accurate information for the 2006 Annual Report. We appreciate your alerting us if you discover errors. For corrections, please call NancyAnne Ward at 360-690-8495 or nward@projectpatch.org. Thank you for demonstrating your faith in Project PATCH and giving us the pleasure of saying, "THANK YOU."

from the director

I know what it is like to be poor. Actually, poor wasn't the word for it. I'd call it dirt poor. Food assistance came in the form of boxes from the neighbors or the church.

My shoes — generally hand me downs — usually had soles so worn that they soon had holes in them. And for church? I didn't have a change of shoes — it was merely a matter of changing the cardboard in the bottom. Things were bad, and issues of survival often cropped up in our childish minds.

Here's the kicker. Today, I am not sure just how poor my parents really were. I do know from my adult experiences with them that they were extremely bad at managing money. Our childish interpretation of poverty was based upon the reality that money was rarely used to feed or clothe us. My sister once asked my mom — whom we loved dearly — why she couldn't buy fruit sometimes. She responded, "Because you kids would just eat it."

Why do I share this with you? Simply to let you know that over the past 23 years of PATCH's existence no financial or material gift goes unnoticed or unappreciated. I am so grateful for every gift that comes to help us assist hurting, misdirected or rebellious teens. Small gifts and large gifts are all appreciated equally — from the dollar bill that helps provide breakfast food to the thousands of dollars that pay for professional counselors and direct care staff. I picture in my mind the sacrifice and commitment it takes on either end of the financial spectrum.

Last year was a year of change for us. The building we had been in for 21 years was sold, and we were forced to find a different location for our Administrative office. Much thought and prayer preceded the decision about where to go and what to do. By the grace of God, through many miracles, we were able to purchase a building in Vancouver, Washington. Maranatha Volunteers remodeled the building to meet our needs and we moved into our new office space in September.

Tom Sanford

Our flagship — PATCH Ranch in Idaho — continued to excel in caring for the young people who grow and transform their lives on that campus.

The Goldendale project has been slow but is making progress. Trees are being thinned, improvements to the grounds are being made and, while not yet completed, the two-mile road into the property is now passable year around. We are really looking forward to providing a facility for families in crises.

One sad note in the events of 2006 came when

Margie Rotthoff passed away.

She and her husband had gifted their ranch to PATCH back in 1989.

It is so wonderful to have such a committed group of supporters! We thank you for helping to make PATCH what it is today. This is not just an idle thank-you; it's a deeply felt expression of gratitude, because many of the young people who come to us have parents who either cannot afford to send their teen to PATCH without help or — like in my case — the parents squander money and are not interested in lending any support to rescue their teen from a disastrous life style.

It took a community of neighbors and people we didn't know to help us six children survive to adulthood. I got help from an aunt who saw more in me than my parents saw and than I could see in myself. She insisted I go to college, paid my first year's entrance fees and told me my success would depend on how committed I was to being a better person. That made a difference — a big difference. Someone actually believed in me!

You are like an aunt or uncle to these kids. You're those special people who refuse to condemn and always hope for the best in spite of the present behavior of a child.

ENROLLMENT BY STATE

from the ranch coordinator

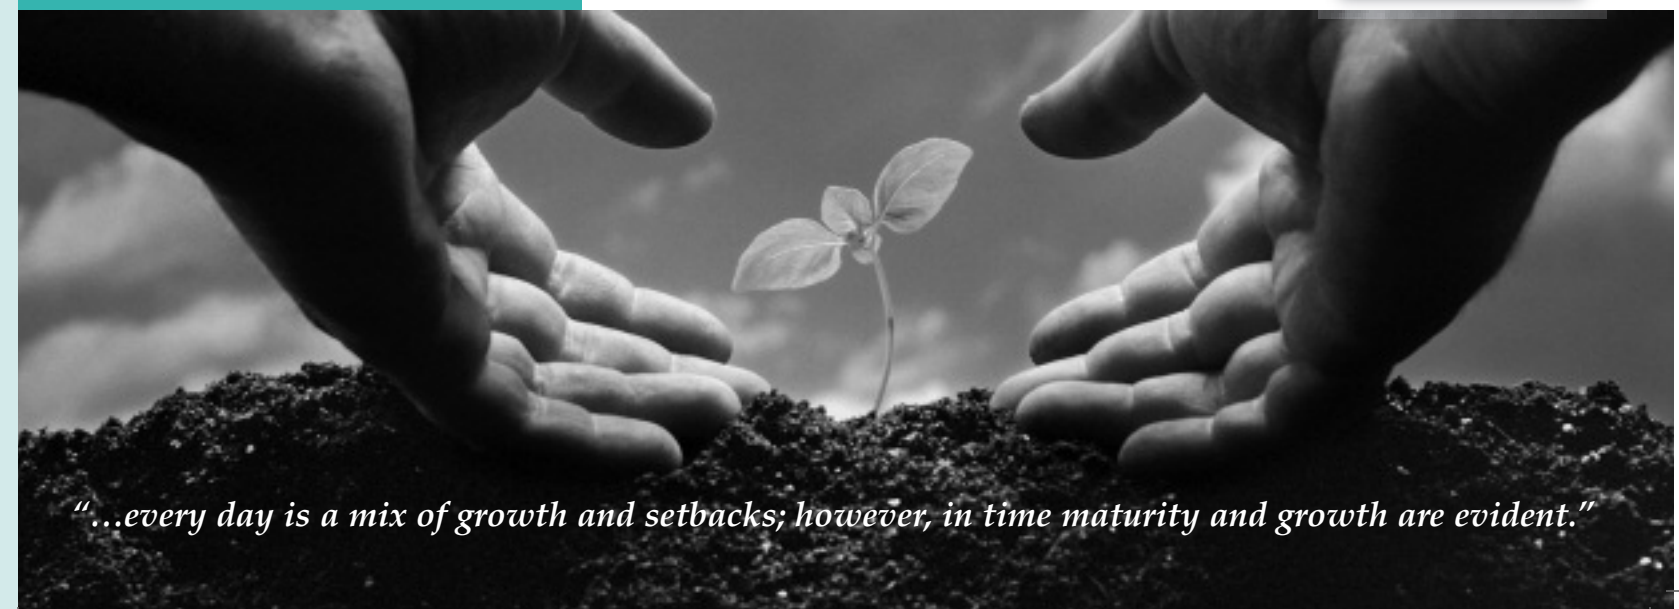

The weather at the PATCH Ranch is confused. One minute it's spring, the next winter. Occasionally there's the slightest hint of summer. The change from winter to spring reminds me of the chaotic change that our kids go through. One minute they are fighting the program, staff, parents, and everyone within reach. The next, they are engaged in healing, demonstrating a positive character and values, and revealing a hint of maturity. For a while, every day is a mix of growth and setbacks; however, in time maturity and growth are evident.

I often ask kids when and why they changed, and they usually get a blank look on their face. Malcolm told me he hadn't changed. When pressed, he admitted he now could express himself instead of getting mad; he could trust adults; and no longer needed drugs or girls to feel good. He's not sure why or when he changed, but he's happy with the change. Tracy was tired of fighting change and being on consequences like work crew. She decided to fake change, and at some point it became real to her. Toby mentioned he decided to change, because he finally understood where his choices were taking him. Regardless of the reason or timing of change, I am thankful for the changes taking place.

Change is especially difficult for staff. We are currently saying goodbye to John and Lucy Jann who have worked with us since 1999. In the past year we hired several new staff, changed our level program, enjoyed two visits by Maranatha Volunteers, celebrated 17 graduations and spent countless hours with our kids as they experience major changes in their lives. The great news is that we are now better people and a stronger organization.

You might ask me when and why I have changed. I'll probably stare into space for a while and then tell you that I'm not sure when or why, but I know God is responsible for every new spring and, for that, I am grateful.

CHUCK HAGELE – RANCH COORDINATOR
